Farmers, Read This.

We have been informed that it has been circulated over the county that we are not in the trade for Corn, Wheat, Bye, Oats, etc. We desire to contradict this report and say to our friends that we are in the market for ALL KINDS OF GRAIN and pay market value for same. We also wish to state in this connection that we will be in the market for New Wheat and, as heretofore, pay the highest market price. Please remember, also, we keep all kind of field seed, such as Clover, Timothy, Orchard Grass, Blue Grass, Cow Peas, Millet and Hungarian seed. H. A. B. Marksberry & Son.

Local Notes.

The K. C. has the Rowland Branch almost entirely ballasted with screenings, which makes a big improvement.

$1.50 round trip to Cincinnati Sunday. Train leaves Lancaster about five a. m. Returning, leaves Cincinnati at 8 p. m.

Meeting at Hustonville.

Eld F M Tinder is holding a splendid revival at Hustonville, and is doing great good for the church.

This office is heels over head in job printing this week, and we trust our readers will pardon lack of news. Fact of the matter is there is no news this week.

Lake Placid is at the high-water mark. The water is delightful and many people drink it instead of that which has been standing in uncleaned cisterns for many years.

In hot weather, be very careful about drinking ice-water and other injurious beverages. The lemon is the safest and best. D D Gelger, at the Lancaster Grocery, serves pure lemonade and it's cold as ice can make it.

Postponed.

Mr E H Beazley, of Stanford, the well known promoter of elocutionary contests has announced that the coming contest, which has been advertised to take place next Friday, June 23rd, has been postponed until the first week in August.

Notice.

First Sunday in July will be our regular Conference day at Baptist church. It is desired that all the members be present. Conference at 10:30, preaching at 11. Will hold services at 3 p m in Mr Am Bourne's yard on the New Danville pike. Every body invited.

As Happy as Larks.

The happiest and jolliest set of men we ever saw were the old Confederate soldiers who attended the reunion in Louisville last week. They are loud in their praise of the hospitable treatment received from the people of Louisville and report the reunion as the most successful and enjoyable ever held.

Saxton & Trost.

Everybody will come to hear the famous Saxton & Trost Military Band at the Lancaster Fair. This is the oldest musical organization in the South and all lovers of music are familiar with its fine work. They will also play for the ball, the young men will give.

Mr Marksberry Hurt.

While attending the Confederate reunion at Louisville last week, Mr H A B Marksberry met with a very painful accident. He had witnessed the production, "Fall of Port Arthur," and in descending the steps at one of the temporary stands, lost his footing and fell, breaking two of his ribs. He was removed to the home of his daughter, Mrs A H Rice, and remained until Monday, when he was able to come home. The pain has been very great, but he was soon able to get about, and is now back at his granary attending to business as usual.

We will be very much obliged if those of our subscribers who are in arrears will send us a check for the amount. Sick or well, dead or alive, we are called upon for what we owe, and we are compelled to come up with the money whether or no. We have been unable to work for more than six weeks, and been to considerable extra expense, so please look at the label on this paper and see how you stand. The price of all newspapers is so low that it is customary to pay a year in advance.

A Good Circus

Van Amburg shows, which pitched their tents in this city last week, gave one of the best performances ever given in this city, and an immense crowd was thoroughly satisfied with every detail. Although the rain came down in torrents, the splendid canvass turned every drop. The bareback riding was especially fine, while the trapeze and horizontal bar work was above the average. The show has more handsome horses than any circus ever brought to this section.

Had Many Friends Here.

Many Lancaster people were deeply grieved to learn of the death of Nath Woodcock, which occurred at Junction City last Thursday. Mr Woodcock, was perhaps the best-known traveling man on the road, and his ready wit and endless number of funny stories made him a welcome visitor everywhere. He had been ill for some time, and came in from a trip to the mountains, being forced to bed at Junction City. Nath Woodcock has brought sunshine into many a crowd, and he will be remembered for many years.

PASSES TO HIS REWARD.

Mayor Robert Kinnaird Dies at His Home in This City After Lingering Illness.

After a lingering and painful illness, Maj. Robert Kinnaird passed peacefully away at his home, on Stanford street, Monday morning at two o'clock. Several years ago, he was attacked by throat trouble, which annoyed him very much, and finally drifted into tuberculosis of the throat. He seldom complained, however, and not until a few months ago did he give evidence of the trouble. He spoke to several of his intimate friends in regard to his condition, but never gave up until weakness and intense suffering prevented his coming to his office.

Major Kinnaird was born in Lancaster on the 12th day of January, 1845, spending his life in this city. When a mere boy, he went to work under his father, Squire Wm H Kinnaird, in the National Bank of Lancaster. He was fond of the business, and his steady work soon won for him the responsible place of teller in that institution, which position he held for more than twenty years. Although he handled thousands upon thousands of dollars, yet he never made an error of consequence, and was always polite and obliging to those who came into the place of business. In fact, his courteous and gentlemanly treatment of everybody, rich and poor alike, made a legion of warm and faithful friends for the bank. He also worked insurance at the same time, and this grew to such an extent that in latter years he has been in this business altogether.

When the law was made creating the office of Mayor for towns of Lancaster's class, he was unanimously elected to that office, and has filled that responsible place ever since. He was for improvements, and the up building of the town. When the City Council voted a tie on granting the franchise for electric lights, he quickly cast the deciding vote, although a strong fight was made against the improvement. He was the same way in every matter coming before the Council. Our readers will remember what a fight was made against the water works improvement. We can say from personal knowledge that Bob Kinnaird did more hard work to bring about this improvement than any man in the town. He made a personal appeal to almost every voter in the town limits to vote for water.

Lancaster never had a more liberal citizen. He contributed willingly to every worthy cause, and would cheerfully give his last penny to any one in need. Every one who had the pleasure of his acquaintance called him "Bob," and when people, old and young take the liberty of addressing an older man by his first name, it is proof conclusive that deep down in their hearts they have a love for that person. He was a member of all the local lodges, but devoted almost his entire attention to his first love—Masonry. He was secretary of Lancaster Lodge 104 for many years, and held that responsible office at the time of his death. He was a life-long and consistent member of the Presbyterian church, and while he made no show of his religion, yet we never knew a more conscientious and God-fearing man. He was one of the few men who put their religion into the every day walks of life by doing unto others as he would have them do unto him and by helping, aiding and assisting those in distress, sickness or need. He had a superlative contempt for a man who would parade in the garb of Christian on Sunday and then turn the cold shoulder to his fellowmen during the business portion of the week.

Robert Kinnaird was the son of Wm H and Patsy McKee Kinnaird, who came from the most prominent families in Kentucky's history. His father, who was cashier of the National Bank for so many years, came to Lancaster when fourteen years of age and in 1865 organized and opened that institution. He is survived by a wife and three children, his parents, five sisters and three brothers.

The funeral services were conducted at the residence Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock, his brother-in-law, Dr Donald McDonald, officiating, at conclusion of which the Knights Templar and Master Masons took charge of the remains and proceeded to the Lancaster Cemetery, where Sir Knight Henry G Sandiford, of Ryan Commandery No 17, conducted the beautiful and impressive burial services. The grave was completely hidden from view by the most handsome floral designs.

Senator Farris Promoted.

The Frankfort Chair Co., for whom Senator Geo. T Farris has been "on the road" for some time, has been consolidated with several other similar concerns, which form about the largest firm in the United States. Senator Farris' ability as a salesman was recognized by his retention as travelling representative. He will have more territory than heretofore, and a better thing all around. He is a splendid gentleman and his host of friends are delighted to know of his good fortune.

Not All Angels.

Is the sweet girl graduate of yesterday helping her mother in the kitchen today? Or is she sitting in the twilight listening for the footsteps of some dude not worth a dollar a dozen and wondering why her father, who has wasted his money on her and has a crook in his back from working for her, hasn't more style about him? pertinently asks an exchange.

The sweet girl-graduate, naturally an angelic creature, can make an angel or an idiot of herself. Just as she chooses.

The Wheat Crop.

Reports from various sections of the county show that there will be an exceptionally large yield of wheat, and that the harvest will be at least ten days earlier than usual, says the Winchester Democrat. The wheat heads are much longer than for a number of years and the grain is plump and fully developed. There is going to be considerable difficulty in some sections to get binders to harvest the crop, and many owners of same are asking an increased price per acre over previous years to cut the crop. There is considerable difference of opinion as to what price will be asked or paid, and we understand there will be a number of buyers in the field.

Mrs. Ernest Woods Dead.

After a lingering illness, Mrs Ernest Woods of Paint Lick, died Tuesday. Mrs Woods had been a sufferer for many months, and recently made a trip to the West in hope of regaining her health. She returned a few weeks ago having derived little or no benefit by the journey. She was beloved by all who knew her, and will be greatly missed by her legion of friends. The bereaved family have much sympathy in their irreparable loss. Funeral services were conducted by Rev D E Frierson, the interment taking place at the Paint Lick Cemetery.

No Stock or Stocks.

The tendency of the age is to issue no stock in Life Insurance Companies, for the reason that the interests of the stock-holder and the policy holder are sure to conflict and bring about trouble. The same is true when the funds of a company are invested in any stocks, which fluctuate. We have a policy in the New York Life, which we prize very highly, because that company neither issues stock nor invests in stocks of any kind. It is purely mutual, and it, with its earnings, belongs to the policy-holders. It issues an incontestible policy from date of contract, and has as good facilities as any company to yield on its investments. It has $100,000,000 assets, and it paid $40,000,000 on death claims and matured policies in 1904. It is very popular with the masses and especially with financiers.

Col. Caperton Buys Fine Home.

Richmond Register: Blair Park is the name given by Col. J. W. Caperton to his new home, the Letcher place containing 60 acres with elegant and costly improvements within the city limits, on West Main street, sold on Thursday July 8, at public sale to the highest bidder.

This is the name of the ancestral home in the Woods line in Albemarle county, Virginia. Col. Caperton's grand mother on his father's side, was Lucy Woods, daughter of Capt. Archibald Woods, who fought with Washington in the Revolution war. Blair Park of Albemarle county, Va., was built in 1737, by Michael Woods, whose wife was Lady Elizabeth Campbell, sister of Sir James Campbell and a cousin of the Duke of Argyll, Scotland.

The Rev Dr. Foote, in his history of the Presbyterian church of Virginia, says that Michael Woods settled in Albemarle county Va., in 1734 and purchased a vast and magnificent tract of land upon which he built a splendid dwelling and called his estate Blair Park.

Col. Caperton is the fifth generation from Michael Woods and Lady Elizabeth Campbell. Mr. Clarence E. Woods of this city whom people desire expect will soon be their Mayor is also descended from Michael Woods. Blair Park in Virginia is now owned by the Micajah Woods of the same family.

Lost, Gent's gold watch on Stanford pike. Return to office and receive reward.

Old-Fashioned Foot Washing.

An old-fashioned foot washing took place Sunday at Beech Grove church and was witnessed by one of the largest crowds ever seen there, says the Bowling Green News. The services were conducted by the Rev Mr Jones, of the Baptist church and were solemn and impressive. Men and women were lined up opposite each other on the lawn, and the elders girded about the waist with a towel, and coats off, went from one to another, and the women the same, washing one foot on each member, while hymns of joy were being sung by the congregation. After the foot washing a big basket dinner was served. A member mounted a stump and invited everybody to eat, as there was plenty for all.

TRESPASS.

Merchants have their faults and make their mistakes like other people. Some of them are poor business men and they conduct poor, sleepy, uninviting, out-of-date stores. Then occasionally there is a rascal among them. But take as a whole, they average as high as any class, mechanics, farmers or professional men. We don't know of a town that has not in different lines of business at least three or four good, honest, conscientious, hard-working merchants.

What do they do to merit your patronage? They urge you to enjoy the convenience of their stores. You are always welcome. Of course the city catalogue houses can't do that.

The home merchants show you the goods before you purchase and willingly make exchanges. The catalogue houses don't do that.

The home merchants reputation and business standing in the community are back of every sale they make. The catalogue houses feel no such responsibility. Their misdeeds in one community do not hurt them in others. They would rather lose a customer than lose a dollar. The home merchant would rather lose a dollar than lose a customer.

The home merchants buy your produce, some times at a loss. The catalogue houses don't.

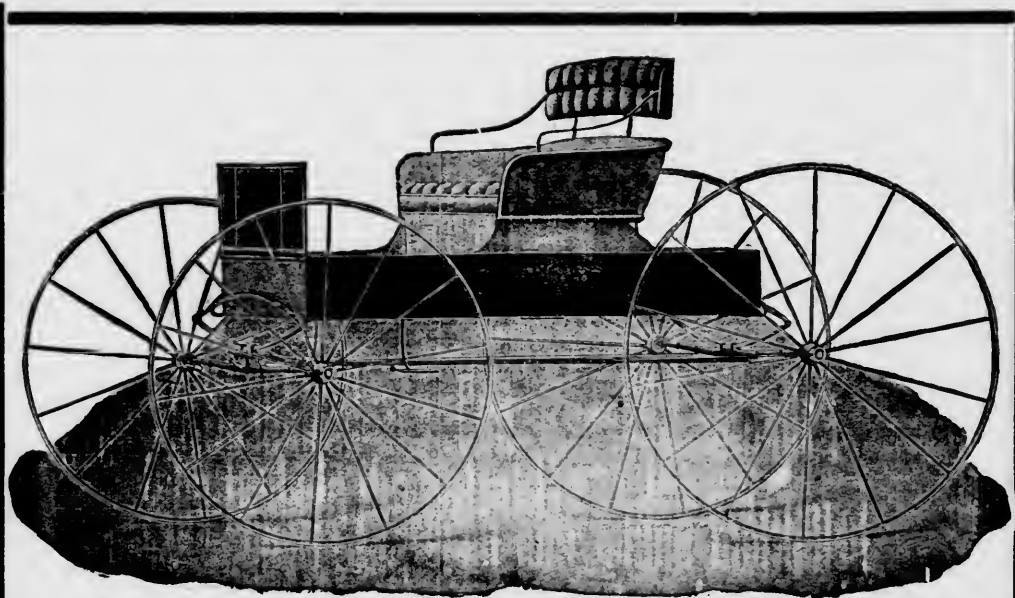

The home merchants give credit when necessary. The catalogue houses insist on spot cash.

The home merchants live among you, contribute to the upbuilding of your town, your schools and your churches. Their interests are your interests. The catalogue houses spend their profits elsewhere. The very nature of their business kills the small community and builds up the large city.

The home merchants can and do meet all legitimate competition. You owe it to your town's welfare and your own welfare to give your merchants a chance to prove this statement before denying them your patronage.

The catalogue houses in their dealings with you ignore all the fundamental principles of community welfare. Their methods are a trespass on community rights.

Think it over.

SAVES THE PUPILS' TEETH.

Germany Has Dental Clinics for Schools in Every One of the Larger Cities.

The dental statistics gathered in many European cities have revealed such an alarming condition of affairs that Germany, at least, has decided to adopt combative measures. In all large towns dental clinics have been founded, consisting, as a rule, of specially fitted-up rooms in one of the central schools. Fully qualified dentists are appointed, who devote their whole time to their duties, but in Stuttgart the work is done voluntarily by the local dentists. That such a movement is necessary can scarcely be doubted when one learns that of many thousands of boys and girls examined from the ages of eight to 13 only two per cent had a perfectly healthy set of teeth. To give an idea of the amount of work done in a year at Darmstadt schools it is necessary to quote the figures of 1903. During the year 1,376 children were examined and 1,561 teeth were filled, while 1,871 were extracted. In Strassburg 2,666 children were examined, 639 teeth were filled and 2,912 were extracted. Another interesting fact is that 40 per cent of all teeth examined were bad. The method of work is simple; the teacher takes his class to the dentist, who examines each mouth quickly and marks on the card which each child has brought with it whether treatment is necessary. If so the child must come again on a Saturday. Russia is also joining in the movement, and has already fitted up nine such institutions in St. Petersburg alone, while Moscow has also several.

A BRILLIANT WEDDING.

A social event of extraordinary interest and of spectacular beauty took place at Crab Orchard Springs last night, Wednesday, June 21, 1905. It was the marriage of Miss Jean Vening Dick and Mr Wm Moses Monks, of Louisville, which was solemnized at nine o'clock on the broad veranda of the magnificent brick hotel, which had been transformed into a bower of beauty, the spacious portico being enclosed for the occasion with a unique lattice of daisies and ferns. The entire setting was that of a magnificent church wedding, with the added advantage of balmy night winds fanning the cheeks of the gathered audience without the obstruction of walls and window panes as in the case of indoor nuptials. The bridal pathway from the main entrance to the remote Southern corner of the front veranda was bespread with snow canvas, adown which the bridal procession passed with measured tread to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march by Prof Henry Saxton's Orchestra from Lexington. On either side of this promenade the wedding guests were ranged, affording all a perfect view of the bridal pageant which moved with faultless precision to the embowered corner where awaited the officiating clergyman, Rev. Geo. C. Crates, Baptist, of Louisville. The space reserved for the families of the high contracting parties was designated by broad flowing ribbons, the floor entirely covered by canvas, the walls latticed as before stated with daisies and ferns lending a rich color effect of green and gold.

The professional arrangement was as follows: First appearing from the main entrance, Mr Lanc Isaacs, of Louisville and Mr Donald D Dick, of Chicago, brother of the bride, both attired in conventional black. Next followed the Matron-of-Honor, Mrs H D Countryman, of Rockford, Ill., sister of the bride, who walked alone in grace and beauty, costumed in cream crepe de chene trimmed with lace. The Maids-of-Honor then appeared, Miss Vera Kimball, and Miss Florence Graham, of Rockford, Ill., schoolmates of the bride, attired in white net over white silk with yellow girldes. Thus as the participants in the pretty pageant passed the eyes of the admiring audience feasted upon the bewitching spectacle. A distance of probably twenty feet intervened between the attendants as they moved to the slow-measured music thus prolonging the beautiful panorama, so that the effect was of the unfolding of a moving picture, each dissolving view being succeeded by another equally as entrancing.

The groomsmen and Maid-of-Honor, having taken up their positions about the minister, the beautiful Maid-of-Honor, one of Kentucky's fairest daughters, Miss Annie Bronaugh, of Crab Orchard, moved gracefully forward, accompanied, wearing a lovely gown of white crepe de chene trimmed with silk lace. All eyes now turned expectantly toward the entrance, supposedly to witness the coming of the bride. Instead, a dainty flower girl, Miss Edith Isaacs, of Louisville, niece of groom, came into view, bearing a basket whence the bridal path was strewn with delicate rose petals, producing a scene of rare sweetness, and fitting prelude to the entire of the bride whose deliciously beautiful costume and snowy veil only enhanced the sweetness and beauty of her fair young face. Her costume consisted of white chiffon tulle, tucked, and elaborately trimmed with Valenciennes lace. As the bride neared the entrance to the bridal bower, the groom, leaning lightly on the arm of his uncle, Mr Claude Moses, of Louisville, the Best Man, approached at right-angles from the Southern porch, having timed the juncture with military precision. Here he was delivered to the bride by his Best Man, and arm in arm they advanced to a position directly beneath the floral marriage bell, facing the minister.

As the ceremony progressed the father of the bride, Dr. Edward G. Dick, stepped forward from the right and gave the bride away. At the conclusion of the benediction, the bridesmaids, who, with the other attendants, were ranged in a semi-circle about the bride and groom pulled a silken cord which released from the overhanging bell a shower of flowery petals which descended like snowflakes upon the happy pair, now husband and wife.

During and after the ceremony the orchestra ensconced nearby played the Flower Song, while friends approached and bestowed their congratulations upon the radiantly happy bride and groom.

Following the reception, light refreshments were served at the bride's table, which had been prepared by Mrs J B Willis with the skill for which she is so justly famous. A bowl of frappe in a convenient corner was also a favorite resort during the evening.

Prior to the ceremony intimate friends were accorded the privilege of inspecting the many beautiful gifts from friends far and near. Delicacy forbids an enumeration of these remembrances, but their costly and elegant character and the tender sentiments accompanying them render certain the enduring gratitude of their charmed recipients.

Fully a hundred guests witnessed the ceremony, including a score or more of the groom's friends from Louisville and vicinity. The festivities concluded at 11 p. m., when Mr and Mrs Monks bade adieu to their guests to exchange their costumes for their traveling garb, and accompanied by a dozen of their friends as far as Livingston, they there took a Pullman for an extended bridal tour embracing Niagara Falls, the Hudson, New York City and the watering places of the eastern coast, after which they will return to spend the summer at Crab Orchard Springs.

Keep Buildings Well Painted.

Many farmers wait several years after building a building before painting it again. They wait until the building is in bad condition and it requires as much or more paint to cover it as it did at first. Buildings should be painted one coat every two or three years. This done, not only will the cost of repairs be lessened, but appearance of the place will be much improved. Fresh paint applied often, even though in small quantities, keeps wood and metal from decay.—G. H. Peters, in Farm Journal.

THE DISCOURAGED MAN.

He Is Handicapped and Is Almost Certain to Meet Disaster and Defeat.

Discouragement cuts the nerve of present effort and darkens the sky of hope for better things. The evangelist who coined the phrase, "God cannot use a discouraged man," was a wise preacher; he might also have said that the world has no use for a discouraged man. Booker T. Washington, in his "Up From Slavery," gives the keynote of his own success in the following sensible words: "I do not recall that I ever became discouraged over anything that I set out to accomplish. I have begun everything with the idea that I could succeed, and I never had much patience with the multitudes of people who are always ready to explain why one cannot succeed." Such a spirit will carry one through every difficulty, and over every obstacle. Speaking of a Young Man who was to come, an old prophet said: "He shall not fail nor be discouraged." The reason he did not fail was because he refused to be discouraged. The old doggerel, "O do not be discouraged," had a big message even though it was wretched poetry and worse music. The sky is ever dark to him who keeps his eyes on the ground!—Service.

The Uncertainties of Revelation.

Inquirers, you tell me, demand certainties. They clamor for immediate and unequivocal answers. Doubtless, and overlook the fact that divine wisdom rarely vouchsafes such. God's reserve is vastly more edifying to the soul than man's dogmatism. If God's book had had the average man for its author no doubt it would have abounded in direct and categorical replies to all questions. But alas, impatient souls, it is not so. We must accept and adjust ourselves to the limitations and uncertainties to which infinite wisdom has seen fit to subject us, even in the realm of revelation. Nay, these very disabilities are suited to nurture a reverent sense of dependence, a prayerful search for guidance, which in themselves are consummate blessings and which in the end will inherit the promises.—J. Henry Thayer.
